On The Way

The Anima Christi: forever and ever. Amen.

The Anima Christi ends as many prayers do: “Forever and ever. Amen.” This is a common end to Catholic prayers. We hear it often at Mass. The Glory Be ends the same way, at least in the Latin. The English has “and ever shall be” and then adds the clunky “world without end. Amen.” Other translations render it “For ages unto ages.” Which isn’t much clearer.

Forever and ever. Amen. This ending is so common as to come across as perfunctory, perhaps even trite. It’s Catholicese for “The Prayer is Over.” It’s precisely because this ending is so familiar that we should strive to understand it and appreciate its significance.

It’s practically impossible for us to think about eternity. We exist in time and for us to think about anything we need...time. As a result, we think of eternity as a really, really, really long time – a “world without end.” And it’s true that eternity will not end. But it’s also true that eternity has no beginning. Because eternity isn’t a lot of time but the absence of time. Even to say that eternity is the “eternal present” or an “eternal now” isn’t accurate.

Anyway, Saint Augustine spent four books of his Confessions trying to explain this, so there’s no way to do it in one bulletin column. Point is, we’re meant to live and to rejoice and to worship God eternally – beyond this world and its time, schedules, calendars and so on. Ecclesiastes says that that God has “put the timeless into [our] hearts” (Eccl 3:11). Indeed, our constant attempts to memorialize the past and anticipate the future indicate that we are temporal beings meant to exist beyond time.

Which brings us to one advantage of thinking about eternity: it makes sense of time. “What we do in life, echoes in eternity!” I’d like to say that line is from scripture or some saint. But it’s from Maximus Decimus Meridius...Russell Crowe’s character in Gladiator. Still, it’s a great line – and true. The import of our actions here is that they shape us into who we will be in eternity. A more noble way of saying this is, “[L]ay up for yourselves treasures in heaven, where neither moth nor rust consumes and where thieves do not break in and steal. For where your treasure is, there will your heart be also” (Mt 6:20-21).

This orientation towards eternity helps us here and now because it properly situates the meaning of time. We live in a timebound culture. We think that this time is all we have and thus enslave ourselves to it. Because we have no concept of eternity and the eternal worth of our life here, we think we have to fit everything into this life, racing around from thing to thing, trying to “create memories,” and leaving little time for just being together. Time has become our master rather than an opportunity.

Of course, time does have great importance, but only in relation to eternity. Living for eternity means that we don’t have to do absolutely everything this side of heaven. Making the most of our time doesn’t mean filling it with activity but doing what is before us well and with charity.

Forever and ever. Amen. This mention of eternity refers to the prior petition of the Anima Christi, that we come to praise Christ with his saints. We want to do that not just for a really, really long time, but eternally. The Eucharist is a “slice” of eternal worship here and now. It is what Thomas Aquinas calls a “Pledge of future glory.” We hope and pray one day to receive the full inheritance of which the Eucharist is a pledge.

Catholic Diocese of Arlington Safe Haven Baby Box Initiative—

Monica Kelsey founded Safe Haven Baby Boxes, Inc., after learning she was abandoned as an infant and seeing a "baby box" in operation at a church in South Africa. Monica has made it her mission to educate others on the Safe Haven Law and to do whatever it takes to save innocent babies from being abandoned. Monica gave a presentation on this effort at the recent diocesan Respect Life Conference.

Virginia has Safe Haven Laws that allow parents to safely surrender infants within the first 30 days of life. However, we still hear the tragic news of a baby being abandoned, underscoring the urgency of strengthening our area safety net for parents in crisis. Safe Haven Baby Boxes allow a parent to anonymously and safely surrender a baby and can reduce the chances of a tragic loss of life.

Currently there are no Baby Boxes in our area. Learn more about the Catholic Diocese of Arlington initiative to bring a Baby Box to Northern Virginia and how you can help by visiting www.arlingtondiocese.org/family-life/respect-life/ or search Northern Virginia Baby Box Initiative/Catholic Diocese of Arlington. Click on Northern Virginia Baby Box Initiative on the left.

Columbus Day Holiday Schedule

This Monday, October 14th, the Rectory and administrative offices will be closed in observance of the federal holiday. There will be two Masses at 6:30am and 8:15am.

Important Notice: School Zone Speed Safety Program

The City of Falls Church launched its inaugural School Zone Speed Safety Program on September 16, 2024, with a new speed safety camera on the 800 block of West Broad Street (Rt. 7) within the designated school zone of Saint James Catholic School.

The purpose of this new transportation safety tool is to protect students as they go to and from school as well as other pedestrians who cross Broad Street.

A warning period runs through Friday, October 25, 2024, to allow drivers a chance to adjust to the new enforcement method. At the conclusion of the warning period, vehicles exceeding the posted speed limit while the speed safety cameras are active will be issued a $100 citation (civil fine) per speeding violation.

For more information about the School Zone Speed Safety Program, visit fallschurchva.gov/speed-safety.

Stewardship—The Gift of Time, Talent, and Treasure

Humanitarian Relief Effort for Hurricane Helene

This weekend, October 12-13, we will have a second collection for Catholic Charities' humanitarian relief efforts for Hurricane Helene.

Catholic Charities USA is accepting donations to support and assist in humanitarian relief efforts in response to the devastation wrought by Hurricane Helene across the southeastern part of the United States. These resources will be utilized as a response to immediate emergency needs for such necessities as water, food, shelter, medical care, and aid in long-term rebuilding and recovery efforts.

To make a donation, please make your checks out to Saint James Catholic Church with "Hurricane Helene" in the memo line or make a one-time gift via our Faith Direct Give Now link at <https://membership.faithdirect.net/givenow/VA50/57427>.

World Mission Sunday October 19-20

Next weekend, October 19-20, our second collection will be for World Mission Sunday. In 1926 Pope Pius XI instituted Mission Sunday for the whole Church with the first worldwide Mission Sunday collection taking place in October 1927. Each year, the Mission Sunday collection is taken on the next to last Sunday during the month of October. Mission Sunday is celebrated in all the local Churches as the feast of catholicity and universal solidarity. The goal is for all Christians to recognize their common responsibility to evangelize the whole world.

This collection will support over 1,000 local churches in Asia and Africa, the Pacific Islands, and parts of Latin America and Europe.

To make a donation, please make your checks out to Saint James Catholic Church with "World Mission Sunday" in the memo line or make a one-time gift via our Faith Direct Give Now link at <https://membership.faithdirect.net/givenow/VA50/1492>.

Porto Charities Special Kids/Special Needs Campaign

Thank you for your generous response last weekend to our Porto Charities special collection in support of their Special Kids/Special Needs Campaign. If you missed the special collection, you can still make an online donation online at membership.faithdirect.net/givenow/VA50/44791 or send a check made out to Saint James Catholic Church with "Porto Charities" written in the memo line.

The mission of Porto Charities is to provide grants to Catholic schools and organizations in Northern Virginia that serve children and young adults with intellectual and developmental disabilities. One of the biggest challenges for Catholic Schools is having enough resources—such as specialized teachers, training, and curriculum—to support our children with intellectual and developmental disabilities. We want our special needs students to attend school with their siblings and have access to the beauty of a Catholic education, but this requires financial resources and support. Since 2009, Porto Charities has given more than $1.2 million in grants to all four of our Catholic high schools and more than fifteen elementary schools, including our parish school which received another $10,000 grant last fall. To learn more, visit www.portocharities.org.
