On The Way

A Catechesis on Worship: Mysterious

If you have had the privilege of attending a full military honors funeral at Arlington National Cemetery, you know the reverence and devotion with which that ceremony is conducted. Much of the rite might not be immediately understandable: the riderless horse with one boot backwards in a stirrup, the twenty-one-gun salute, taps, the folding of the flag, etc. Still, in another sense we do get it. We sense on a deeper level the sorrow and gratitude being expressed for the deceased. Nobody has ever asked to do away with the more opaque elements because their very mystery speaks to us in a deeper way than any intellectual explanation could.

This secular liturgy reveals an essential dimension of worship: mystery. Even as we proclaim God to be our “reasonable worship” and strive to understand the liturgy, still we must maintain a sense of mystery about the Mass. God and the worship of him remain beyond our ability to comprehend (i.e., to embrace fully with our minds). The Mass – the mystery of faith – is something we can know in part but never in full.

This limit is not a frustration randomly placed on our reason but simply the truth that our mortal and temporal minds cannot fully grasp divine and eternal truths. Just as in theology we always know more about what God is not (invisible, incomprehensible, immutable) than what he is, so also in the Mass we acknowledge that we don't fully understand what's been entrusted to us. We bow and kneel in awe. Further, if we try to make the Mass perfectly accessible to our minds, then we do violence to it. We wrench it out of place and bring it down to our level rather than allowing it to lift us up to the divine.

The Church has always tried to evoke a sense of mystery and transcendence in her worship. Consider the various veils. A veil is placed over sacred things, to mark them off as sacred and to remind us that, in the end, God is beyond our ability to comprehend. The chalice veil calls attention to the significance of that vessel, that it's not an ordinary cup but one set aside for sacred purposes. Likewise, the vestments of the priests and deacons are not just decorative. They don't conceal the man but reveal his identity as a minister of God. They cover the everyday clothes to indicate that this mortal man is engaged in a work of eternal significance. Much as the Jews in our Lord's time reserved Hebrew for their worship (Aramaic was the everyday language), so we continue to use Latin and Greek. Those constitute a linguistic veil to convey that we speak divine and eternal things at Mass, not just everyday things.

The incense used at Mass is an ancient sign of prayers rising to heaven (a meaning perhaps lost when the AC blows the smoke sideways...). The smell and the smoke themselves suggest something out of the ordinary.

Mystery conveys the limits of our human knowledge and autonomy. At the heart of the first sin is a disregard for man's limits and a presumption of a status that is not ours (You will be like gods...). The mystery of worship helps to restore that proper sense of his transcendence, that he is God and we are not. As rational beings, we ought to apply our minds to our worship. But in the end even the most learned among us must humbly acknowledge God's transcendence and proclaim that he is Holy, Holy, Holy.

Saint James Catholic School Teacher Appreciation Week

Saint James Catholic School is very fortunate to have such wonderful and dedicated teachers and staff. Every year in May, students and parents show their love and appreciation for the faculty. Throughout the week, the faculty was provided 10-minute massages, flowers, a Smoothie Day, lunches, a special gift, and a relaxation room called the “Dug Out” with a baseball theme that included snacks. They also recognized Nurse Clare for her wonderful care for Nurse’s Week. Thank you to the PTO and parents for all the special goodies.

If you would like to show your support for our three-time Blue Ribbon School, you can make a tax-deductible gift to the School’s Annual Appeal, the Clarke-Delaney Teacher’s Fund, or our Guardian Angel Scholarship Fund via the following online link, <https://stjamescatholic.org/support-our-school/> or via a check sent to the school or rectory. THANK YOU!

“Let us thank all those who teach in Catholic Schools. Educating is an act of love; it is like giving life.” Pope Francis
